BarrelHorses.com Announces "Team BarrelHorses.com"

Augusta, Ga., — BarrelHorses.com announces the formation of "Team BarrelHorses.com", a select group of individuals who have been chosen to represent the Web site. BarrelHorses.com will match the "Team's" earnings and contribute a portion of their winnings to charitable organizations at selected barrel events during 2004. The mission of this team is "Running to Make a Difference."

Upholding the integrity of competitive sportsmanship, this inaugural group of riders will participate in barrel events across the nation. Representing the 2004 team are team captains, Lance Graves, AQHA World Champion from Hartshorne, Okla., and Leslie Willis, Chester, S.C. The youth riders include: Tegan Honeycutt of Lancaster, S.C; Clay Oliver of Jefferson, S.C; Amanda Sartain of Hodges, S.C; and Blake Worland of Overland Park, Kan.

BarrelHorses.com is proud to introduce the concept of a team to represent a sport that brings families together throughout the year and can potentially have significant payoffs for those riders who perform exceptionally well throughout their careers. Ryan Dohrn, general manager and founder of BarrelHorses.com, states, "It would be fantastic to see one of our team members have a significant impact on the sport and really launch their career while racing as a member of Team BarrelHorses.com."

BarrelHorses.com is a complementary Web site to HorseCity.com.
